PRESIDENT'S DEATH SHOCKS CAMPUS

O Captain! My Captain!

O Captain! My Captain! our fearful trip is done;
The ship has weather'd every rack, the prize we sought is won,
The port is near, the bells I hear, the people all exulting;
While follow eyes the steady keel, the vessel grim and daring;

But, O heart! heart! heart!
O the bleeding drops of red,
Where on the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

O Captain! my Captain! rise up and hear the bells;
Rise up—for you the flag is flung—for you the bugle thrills,
For you bouquets and ribbon'd wreaths—for you the shores
a-crowding
For you they call, the swaying mass, their eager faces turning;

Here Captain! dear father!
This arm beneath your head!
It is some dream that on the deck
You've fallen cold and dead.

My Captain does not answer, his lips are pale and still,
My father does not feel my arm, he has no pulse nor will,
The ship is anchored safe and sound, its voyage closed and done,

From fearful trip the victor ship comes in with object won.
Exult O shores, and ring O bells!
Put I with mournful tread
Walk the deck my Captain lies,
Fallen cold and dead.

Franklin D. Roosevelt in the Light of Changing History

by Dr. Herbert F. Rudd

Franklin D. Roosevelt has been a most unusual president in a most unusual era. It is very enlightening to catalogue some of the unusual items about the man and the times.

The unique thing about Roosevelt is that he has not been a dictator but a compromiser, a harmonizer of the many interests of the American people. His concern for the "forgotten man" has been a dominant interest of the whole administration. He had not been dominated by the money interests, the upper classes, the reactionaries. Neither has he been dominated by the under-privileged, the labor unions, the organized farmers or any one pressure group or any minority faction. He has been responsive to political pressures but it has been the pressure of all groups that have determined decisions in the long run. He has not been altogether consistent because the American people, the national demands, and the national thinking are not unified or consistent.

We were told that Wilson had a "one-track" mind. Roosevelt has shown the opposite type of mind—one which tended to follow all of the tracks in rapid succession. He has sought advice from many men of special viewpoints and has seemed to agree with the last man he talked to, but has worked out a certain measure of consistency in a national program throughout twelve years of precarious national history.

We must remember that this administration has presided over a population three thousand per cent greater than that of Washington and three hundred per cent larger than that of Lincoln.

The railroad and the steamboat and the automobile have multiplied the speed of transportation and have greatly increased its range and extent.

The airplane accelerated the whole process. The telegraph, telephone and radio have made communication instantaneous throughout the whole nation, and the world.

The cumulative effect of all of these in the life of the people has been felt only during the Hoover and the Roosevelt administrations.

Just when technological changes made us an integral part of a world-wide economy, deeply dependent on the trade relations and political movements of many nations, we were forced to confront the totalitarian programs of Russia, Italy, Germany and Japan which are transforming the economies of Europe and Asia. Concentration of power in national administrations is a deeply characteristic trend of the age. It seems to be an almost inescapable trend in every nation which is to have any hope of being master of its own affairs. When the very forces of history are putting power in the hands of managerial groups there is imperative demand that the managers themselves be under the control of the democratic electoral process.

The economic activities and the financial resources of this country have multiplied far more rapidly than the increase in population. The demands which the people of today make upon their federal government have increased even more rapidly than the increase in wealth.

In this period of revolutionary changes and multiple crises President Roosevelt has been responsive to the demand of the times and of the whole people. Many times he has been more responsive to the wishes of the people than have either the United States Senate or the House of Representatives. He has really created a new type of democracy by having his ear to the ground and integrating the national wishes before they had any other adequate expression.

Roosevelt Embodied Finest Qualities

Last night a weary sailor paused during the bloody bombardment of Okiwana island on the outskirts of Japan and paid a tribute to our late leader as fine as those declared by ambassadors, statesmen, and commentators. With good enduring respect in his eyes, the boy reflected, "It's like someone in your own family dying."

The words are a summary of our own confused thoughts as we have vainly tried to collect them after the shock of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's death. His passing makes us consciously aware of the future and afraid of an un contemplated turn of events. Everything within his noble character would have revolted at our attitude as he made a point to share his philosophy with his people. He taught us that the only thing we have to fear is fear itself and he practiced what he preached. In 1921 FDR was stricken with infantile paralysis which left his young, limber body a withered support to be aided with steel braces. It was only the beginning of a long suffering which he bore alone and which he left behind yesterday afternoon. His voice, during the nation-wide broadcasts which made the President and his people old acquaintances, was warm, sincere, humorous, and serious. It gave no hint of the infirmity he carried with every step. The pain was only in his eyes and in the wrinkles which increased as he helped mold the world into a brotherhood of men and nations. The children without faith that suffered with him in Warm Springs, Georgia, were inspired with new courage when he offered them his fine human friendship.

Regardless of political parties and policies, the intelligent citizen of the United States realizes that this is not a time to think of the mistakes and wrong paths Franklin Roosevelt might have pursued during his administrations. That is for tomorrow and the next day. Yesterday and today we must think only of the man and of the good he made manifest in the world. A great personality has passed into the immortality he has rightfully earned. His meetings and conferences with the leading men of other nations smacked of the clever foresight and insight he knew were powerful in a progressive world.

As the champion of democracy, he carried the torch through war and

President Truman

Harry S. Truman, last night, became the thirty-second president of the United States of America. His is a truly American story; a simple, firm, able American rises from obscurity to become Commander-in-Chief of a warring nation.

On his shoulders now falls the great burden. Through him, in his actions and his accomplishments, Franklin Roosevelt will carry on.

Let us realize that the nation has been struck a fearful blow, but not a mortal one. Our loss is great, but we must carry on. Let us draw a deeper breath, gird ourselves for greater effort, and renew our pledge, in his memory, and resolve to place our trust in our new president, Harry S. Truman.

News of the death of President Franklin D. Roosevelt flashed over the entire world last night and was received in Durham, this tiny New England college town, with mingled emotions of incredulity and grief. Its stunning impact cast a pall over campus, as students professors and townsfolk were momentarily stunned by the first report, then ran for radios where that news which they did not want to hear was verified.

Expressions of grief were uniform. "I have nothing to say except that I'm overwhelmingly sorry." said one man. Another girl wiped her eyes and moved on. Grant's and Follansbee's were emptied of patrons upon receipt of the news. President Stoke hurriedly called a meeting of Student Council and the Association of Women Students together with university officials to arrange for a memorial convocation.

From the windows of the several dormitories, news commentators eulogized upon the late president and the soft melancholy strains of funeral dirges echoed in the April night.

This afternoon at 1:05 the T Hall bell tolled solemnly to announce the opening of convocation in New Hampshire Hall. The faces of the students as they filed into the hall clearly showed realization of the tremendous import of the news, and confidence in the ability of our new president, Harry S. Truman.

Shock of FR's Death Resounds on Campus

President Franklin Delano Roosevelt, the greatest man our generation has known, died yesterday, April 12, 1945, in a little white cottage on Pine Mountain in Warm Springs, Georgia.

The sad news reached Durham and the campus at about six o'clock last night. Shocked, incredulous, almost disbelieving the tragic report, students, professors and townsfolk were moved by a universal feeling of grief and awe. The calm of the hot April afternoon was broken. Radios blared forth the news in dormitory rooms. Many of the students heard the news as they strolled down the street during the supper hour. A crowd of stunned citizens stood around a parked car on Main Street and heard an announcer verify the rumors they had not wanted to believe. Supper tables all over campus were surrounded by tense faces which asked over and over, "What will we do now?" No one could answer. The short period of time, yesterday, that our country was without a leader saw the crystallization of all our hopes and fears in emotions and in actual words.

Many students called their homes, hoping to get consolation from their families in this international grief. Others walked back to their rooms with unashamed tears streaming from their eyes. Wide-eyed students ran to radios and stayed beside them late into the night. Informal discussions filled the dormitories, as reflections and opinions about the past and the future were exchanged in an effort to combat despair.

This morning, newspapers were snatched from counters to be read at breakfast and during classes. There is a new man in the White House. Harry S. Truman is now the president of the United States. The campus puts its faith and its prayers in his ability to perform the immense task before him.

Book Drive

Colleges and books go together. But who ever connected books with a concentration camp? They are connected, however,—connected because we make them so. By the way of the Red Cross and other similar agencies we can send books to our men in enemy prisons. We live so intimately with books that we sometimes forget how much they can mean when they're the only connection one has with the outside world. Close proximity tends to lessen the value of books to us, but to a man who lives only with disease, and death and suffering they can mean a dream renewed and faith rekindled.

We don't need all our books—we have more than enough. At least we have enough to be able to share them with the men who are fighting so that, among other things, we'll be able to continue to have freedom of expression in the writing of the world's literature. During the coming book drive every student on campus should be able to spare at least one book for a Yankee soldier. And if it's a book that he would like to read and reread, so much the better, because he's free to walk up the street at any time and read it in the public library. What wouldn't some soldier give for that same privilege?

Clothing Drive

One hundred and twenty-five million people in Europe alone—men, women, and children—are in desperate need of clothing. In some countries, death from exposure exceed those due to starvation! There is enough spare clothing in America's clothes closets and attics to go far toward relieving the distress of these innocent people. Early in the war the German leaders said that we of America were soft hearted and a "sucker nation." If they had in mind our national tendency to come to the aid of the oppressed and the suffering then let us continue to be a "sucker nation." The fate of so many depend on your generosity—give it serious thought and see what you can spare that they can wear.

Vote

Elections will be held for the Student Government on Wednesday, April 18. We are all in College so that we may better ourselves and in doing so work for the benefit of our country. The greatest duty of any citizen is to exercise his right to vote, and what can be more indicative of our future lives than the manner in which we elect and run our student government organizations? Students are always quick to criticize their representative organizations, sometimes justly and at other times unjustly. However, in any form of government which is elected by popular vote, if we are dissatisfied, we have no one to blame but ourselves. Let's all vote, girls, and let's vote wisely. Elections will be held in front of T-Hall, so acquaint yourselves with the candidates and everyone vote.

To the Editor:

Ever since we have been on campus, we have heard about non-cooperation on the part of the students. We now have something to say on the other side of the question.

Recently, as a result of honest effort and a real desire to improve the general appearance of our campus, we sent out what we thought was a representative questionnaire, and asked for the cooperation of the professors and instructors in filling out. What did we get? Attempts at wit, ambiguous answers, and even slurs aimed at the questionnaire.

Naturally, we did receive a few intelligent answers. But this was the case only with a small minority. To those people who did their best to answer with their honest opinions, we express our thanks.

To those who did otherwise, we can't help but ask: if you desire our cooperation as thoroughly as we have been led to believe, how can you refuse us yours?

German Propaganda Displayed at Library

Examples of German propaganda dropped by plane or enclosed in shells that burst overhead are currently on exhibit in the Hamilton Smith Library at the University of New Hampshire. They are one of a series being shown through the courtesy of Dyan William A. Medesy, collected while he was on active duty with the field artillery in the Mediterranean Theatre.

Enemy propaganda shown includes leaflets dropped to Italian soldiers urging them to defend their country against Anglo-American invaders; to Arabs in Tunisia, urging sniping and sabotage to repel British and American invaders; to French soldiers, bidding them stand fast with Petain and the Axis; and to French soldiers, offering safe conduct through German lines and repatriation.

Guide books and maps issued to American soldiers before they invaded a country are on exhibit. One of these in "North Africa for all members of U. S. Expeditionary Forces," the first of its kind to be written for assault troops. A letter dated July 31, 1942, from President Roosevelt to members of the U.S. Expeditionary Forces on board HMS "Queen Mary" is also on display.

Highlights of the exhibit is an actual message Captain Medesy received on February 19, 1943, during the height of the battle for Kasserine Pass in Tunisia. It read, "Still don't know our status. Germans are putting on an attack toward your position from Djebel Toulla. Be careful. Flash—move battery to crossroad west of Hadjel. Toelkin will lead you."

Speaking of Operations!

An invasion fleet of several hundred warships uses some 48,000 telephones—from 1,500 on a battleship to 10 on a motor torpedo boat. That's as many as are used by most cities of 160,000!

Our fighting men are using telephones, wire, switchboards, and other communications equipment in huge quantities. And Western Electric workers, peacetime suppliers to the Bell System, are busy meeting those needs.

That is why there are not enough home telephones right now. But we are looking forward to the day when the Bell System can again provide telephone service to anyone, anywhere, at any time.

Alpha Xi Leads Interhouse Tourney

Alpha Xi, by winning the Interhouse Table Tournament, placing second in the Basketball Tournament, and having 100 per cent participation in the Bowling Tournament, is still leading Interhouse Competition with a total of 495 points. For this achievement, credit is due Miss Joan Stevens, sports chairman of Alpha Xi.

Pi Lambda, on the other hand, is a striking example of the fact that no matter how small a house may be it still might beat all the houses on campus in the friendly and traditional rivalry for the coveted Interhouse trophy.

Last year the trophy was won by the largest house on campus, the formidable Congreve South. As this year nears its completion, little Pi Lambda, under her sports chairman, Charlotte Silva, has a margin of more than 100 points over Congreve South. These points were piled up by winning the Campus Bowling Tournament, being the winner of League VI in the Campus Basketball Tournament, and having 100 per cent participation in the Table Tennis Tournament. Pettee House, under the leadership of Janet Tinker, by placing second in the Bowling Tournament, now ranks third with a total of 395 points. Tied in fourth place, are Chi Omega, Phi Mu and Theta U with a total of 355 points each.

Total house standings are as follows: Alpha Xi, 495; Pi Lambda, 450; Pettee House, 395; Chi Omega, 355; Phi Mu, 355; Theta U, 355; Congreve South, 344; Grant, 335; SAE, 335; Theta Chi, 335; Schofield, 329; Congreve North, 300; Scott, 296; Sigma Beta, 295; Phi Mu Delta, 272; Smith, 224; Kappa Delta, 220; Commons, 190; and Alpha Chi, 175.

As the Badminton, Tennis, and Archery Tournaments are yet to be held, as well as the Posture-Poise contest, it is still anybody's race.

Back again after a joyful Easter vacation, well rested and in good condition to start studying for a change. The last lap of the school year starts off on a pleasant note with the announcement by the Senate Committee that baseball will be sponsored on an informal basis. Now this word "informal" has raised a number of queries as to its official interpretation by the University and not by our old pal Noah Webster. The answer to that is when an informal sport is played no letters, numerals, etc will be awarded to the participants. The schedule is also smaller but the word "informal" means mainly no awards. Well, now that's settled we'll cast our thoughts back to baseball.

As mentioned in the adjoining column discussing the baseball prospects an eight-game schedule will be undertaken. Four contests have been arranged while the other four are still pending. The first display of baseball in Durham will be on April 28 when the Maine Bears come out of hibernation to open up the Wildcat season. The Bears have been working out for several weeks with a sixteen-man squad and as expected have a weak hurling staff. Last year the Wildcats socked the Bruins 18-5 scoring 10 runs in the first inning. Hope it'll happen again.

The following Wednesday the Swasey-men will journey to Boston where they will engage the Boston University Terriers. The Terriers have not had a team for two years and will be starting from scratch. Coach Mal Collard is faced with a weak mound staff.

The other two games will be with Northeastern and the Sanford Naval Air Station. Nothing has been heard from Northeastern but they usually have a fairly strong team and last year's edition handed the Wildcats a defeat. The Sanford Nine is one of minor league strength with a number of players who have seen plenty of diamond action. The dates of these two games is not yet known.

The remaining duels will no doubt find the Wildcats playing host to a nearby service team or one of the Maine schools, Colby, Bates, or Bowdoin. That, however, is only a guess and only time and time alone will tell.

Dis and Data

Red Crory departed from this center of culture Monday and henceforth his talents will be with Uica of the Eastern League. Red is a capable twirler and should be a decided asset to the Phillies' farm club. Keep an eye on him Mr. Barnes!

Rip Therrian still with the Braves, has done some very spectacular hittin in a few contests and will very likely garner an infield post at their farm club in Hartford.

Women Are Defeated By Men's Rifle Team

The Men's Rifle Team, under the direction of Lt. Colonel Joseph Daly, upheld their claims of superiority at a historic match held on the University Range, Thursday, March 29, at 4 p.m. The Women's Team of the UNH Rifle Club are willing to concede this superiority—at least when it comes to shooting. Members of the Women's Team under the direction of Miss Evelyn Browne of the Women's Physical Education Department, were chosen from the physical education classes in riflery.

Although the women have been handicapped by a lack of ammunition, they made a good account of themselves, and the men's victory was by no means a walk-away.

The total scores for the match were: Men, 458; Women, 436. The highest individual score of the match was shot by Miss Barbara Kreiger, who attained a score of 96. This gave her a margin of two points over her two closest rivals, Robert Beauregard and John Breynaert, who both shot 94.

Members of the Women's Team were as follows: Barbara Kreiger, Fannie Lucas, Barbara Prain, Barbara Young, Ruth Flanders, and Helen Scott.

Members of the Men's Team were: Robert Beauregard, John Breynaert, Jack Hornbeck, Ervin Doyle, John Grady, Francis Whelan, and Jerry Paquette.

Phi Lambda Sorority Wins Bowling Tourney

Pi Lambda, one of the smallest sororities on campus, walked off with the laurels in the recent Interhouse Bowling Tournament. Miss Evelyn Browne, faculty adviser of Interhouse Activities, reports that the final play-offs between Pettee House and Pi Lambda climaxed a month's long tournament. Sixteen women's houses on campus held house tournaments to select their team for the Campus Tournament.

The following houses had 100 per cent participation in their House Tournaments: Alpha Xi, Chi O, Grant House, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, SAE, Theta Chi, and Theta U.

The Campus Tournament consisted of five Round Robin League Tournaments. The League winners were as follows: League I, Congreve North; League II, Pettee House; League III, Theta Upsilon; League IV, Phi Mu; and League V, Pi Lambda. League winners received 20 points for their house.

In the final play-offs between the league winners, Pi Lambda emerged victorious over her opponent, Pettee House, thus winning the 100 points which has put her in second place in the Interhouse Competition. Pi Lambda bowlers were Mary Robinson, Bobby Vogt, Claire Riendeau, and Chaucie Silva. Pettee House's team consisted of Pat Parker, Esther Wakefield, Mary Sherman, and Joan Eldridge.

Miss Browne reports that sixteen houses took part, approximately forty matches were played, and over half the women on campus bowled in this popular Interhouse activity. Nancy Ferguson, vice-president of WAA and director of all Interhouse Activities, organized the tournament, with the Bowling Leader, Barbara Berger. Much credit is due Miss Berger and her assistants, Jean DeLand and Grace Johnson, for a most successful tournament.

Nineteen Candidates Out For Squad; Twirling Dept. Lacks Strength

With the announcement by the Senate Committee that an informal baseball team will be sponsored by the University, Coach Swasey's charges who have been working out for the past few weeks have now settled down to prepare in earnest for the coming season. An eight-game schedule is contemplated but arrangements have not yet been completed.

Coach Swasey issued his initial call last month and was greeted by a squad of approximately thirty boys and among these were only four holdovers from last year's team which won 3 out of its 8 games. Of the four, Joe Bennett, "Twit" Henry, Rudolf Honkala, and Bud Tibbetts, the latter was the only player to see service consistently and therefore Coach Swasey must start a team from scratch. Of last season's players, the majority have entered the armed forces and several have left via the sheepskin route. However, an enthusiastic squad is working out and Coach Swasey has found it necessary to cut the number of candidates in half leaving only those who have had previous college or high school experience.

The weak spot in this year's team will no doubt be the pitching staff and unlike last year's squad with its two dependable redheads, Adams and Crory, no experienced twirlers are available. Fred White and "Twit" Henry have perhaps the greatest amount of experience of the four-man staff. White holds two verdicts over the Dartmouth freshmen while in the harness of Tilton Junior College and Henry pitched for the UNH All-Stars last summer. Steve Haynes, Dick Meade, and Lennie Levine comprise the remainder of the candidates.

The backstop picture is shaping up in grand style with two seasoned prospects in action, Jack Stuart, who played for Northeastern last season, and Steve Aliopolous.

The infield situation looms as a bright one with a galaxy of seasoned prospects out. Bud Tibbetts and Joe Bennett, both vets of last year's edition of the Wildcats, are vying for the first base post. Tibbetts is the heavier hitter but Joe has the reach and can really scoop 'em in. Carl McDuffee and Glen Vickery are working out for the keystone sack. Vickery played for the American Legion Junior baseball finalists, Sweeney Post of Manchester, and should add some real strength to the squad. Andy Mooradian, former Revere star, is out for the short-stop as is Eddie Noyes who played short for the UNH. All-Stars. Holding down the hassock at the hot corner will be either Ed Gulibicky or Joe Swekla. Joe starred for Tilton Prep while Gulibricky saw action with Haverhill High.

Only four candidates remain for the outfield post and all have seen action with one team or another. John Hennenberger, Rudolf Honkala, Demo Demopolous and Red Grant are out in the green pastures and no doubt will see action the forthcoming campaign.

All in all the squad shapes up in a fair manner and according to Coach Swasey should be on the par with the Wildcats of '44 if not better.

NH Honors President At Special Convo

At 1:05 p.m. the tolling of T-Hall bell summoned the students of the University of New Hampshire to a special convocation held in memory of our late President — Franklin Delano Roosevelt.

Requiem were played while the students filed solemnly into New Hampshire Hall. The invocation was offered by Reverend Clinton A. Condict. Professor Donald C. Babcock in his speech eulogizing the Life of President Roosevelt stated: "Some famous men are what you would call great because what they did made such a difference in human events; other famous men are representative, which is different from greatness. It is the sharing of the qualities of the common people - being one of them. Franklin Roosevelt was both of these.

President Harold W. Stoke in his speech entitled "The Future" made the following significant statements: "The people of the United States and indeed the people of other nations as well have been dealt a staggering blow. So after the first stunned reactions pass the first question in all our minds is: And now what? What for the war? What for our system of government? What for ourselves? Let me reassure you. I think there is no undue cause for worry. We had the President's own assurance some months ago that the plans of campaign had long since been completed. How much they may have been shaped or affected by the President, personally, we may never know, but they must have been good if we may estimate them by the measure of their success so far. Nearly every war, before its successful completion, must produce its own military leaders. The fortunes of the battle compel us to change them until we find those who are equal to the responsibility. This war is no exception. Fortunately, it has gone far enough to make us confident that we have now identified our competent military leaders. Generals Marshall, Eisenhower, MacArthur, Arnold and a host of associates have demonstrated their capacities and the Navy with Admirals King, Nimitz, peace, defending the underdog in labor and society. And the flame burned brighter. As Commander-in-Chief, he was expected to be a soldier. As a man, Mr. Roosevelt was a soldier and died in line of duty. The men under him, stationed on battlefields in every continent, learned to respect his judgment, knowing it was clear and deep and dependable. The shock of his death hurts them. They would have been repaid for their sacrifice to have seen his big grin and felt his consuming gratitude when they finally presented him with the victory he longed for.

List. She is also a Big Sister, member of the Outing club and SCM.

Halsey and their associates have likewise proven themselves. I think that we can all rest assured that the war is under skillful direction. The basic decisions of strategy have been taken. The plans of campaign are complete. They will not be reversed; they will be successful. At the very outset of the strategy of this war the decision was made to make it a war of material and not of manpower, to spend billions of dollars for the finest of equipment in the most prodigal amount but to save the life of every man which could be saved. That basic decision was in accordance with the spirit of humanitarianism which has made headway in American life. That basic decision will not be changed. My own faith is that the war will be fought skillfully and successfully and that we need feel no more uneasiness over the outcome or over the safety of those fighting today than we did yesterday."

The memorial service was brought to a close with the singing of the first verse of "America" by the audience and the offering of the benediction by Reverend Clinton A. Condict.
